How to have a successful 4-H record book

Use this record book to document all your project's records, activities, shows and financial records. Use this to keep your certificates, ribbons, and other project records. When you complete your 4-H Program for this year write your 4-H story. A record book should be kept up to date and progressive. Make sure to do your own writing and typing.

Table Contents: Develop and identify all pages and where to find them. Tabs/dividers are encouraged in the record book to help make easy to explore.

My Planning Calendar: Write down the activities and events you have been involved in. Keep track of important events such as 4-H meeting, county fair, camps, and project related activities.

My 4-H Project Record: Use this to illustrate what you want to learn this year with your project. Plan on how you can learn more about your project with your 4-H leader/mentor. Express how your parents agree to help you learn and grow with your projects. Signatures required.

YQCA: List the ways you will practice and promote quality care of animals according to your age group.

Market Livestock Record: Complete this sheet for market livestock projects. Record all non-feed expense such as show equipment, housing and feed equipment. Record all feed expense for example cost of hay, pasture, grain, salt, mineral etc.

Income: Record your income from market livestock project sales or private sales. Record all equipment inventory list equipment and its value. Record any death loss and record weight records. Develop a financial summary use the financial categories from previous totals to add up income and expenses to find project's profit or loss.

Projects Photos: Show off you and your project with pictures!

Project Highlights: What did you learned with your project, problems and success occurred and what you would do differently next time.

Show Record list the important information: date, project breed, name of show, class name, and placing.

4-H: Outside of the Show Ring: List the livestock judging practices and contests participated in. List the presentation opportunities and contest participated in. Record the community service activities participated in that benefited others. List offices held in 4-H, school and other groups, organizing a leadership projects for a club, group or being a mentor.

Essay questions: Answer in full sentence with details, grammar and spelling is important.
