Revolt in the Desert

Lawrence Pintak

After the ousting of the democratically elected Muslim Brotherhood backed President Morsi, Egypt finds itself in the midst of a second revolution. Lawrence Pintak will discuss the tumultuous happenings in the Arab world's largest country and explain the impact the revolution will have on the United States.

Lawrence Pintak is a professor and Founding Dean of the Edward R. Murrow College of Communication. Before joining WSU he directed the Kamal Adham Center for Journalism Training and Research at The American University in Cairo.

Join us for pizza, soda, and stimulating discussion. RSVP to Richard Elgar at relgar@wsu.edu
