Plant Pathology DEI Committee presents: “Inclusion 101”

Invited Speaker: Allen Sutton, Ed.D. (He/Him/His)
Executive Director, WSU Office of Outreach and Education,
WSU Division of Student Affairs

Dr. Allen Sutton works as the Executive Director for the Office of Social Justice Education and Outreach at Washington State University in Pullman, WA. His day-to-day job is to help people comprehend and navigate the myriad of issues that prevent people, organizations, and institutions from being fully inclusive while developing the professionals and citizens of tomorrow. His goal is to help everyone feel a sense of “fit” within their respective roles on campus and in surrounding communities. He is married to his college sweetheart, Latoya, and they have two wonderful children, Aresia and Chandler. He received his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Southern Mississippi, and his doctorate degree from the University of Alabama. His primary research area includes instilling empathy and respect into diversity, equity, and inclusion practices.

Dr. Allen's talk will be catered specifically towards the Department of Plant Pathology, crafted and cultivated based on the input of the department's Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Committee. This seminar will provide us in the Department of Plant Pathology with resources to connect more effectively with each other and the WSU community.
