

After The Journey

I experienced motherhood in the span of minutes on that ship to the city.
People dove like stars into the sea. Their laughter frothed through the heavy clouds, warm and inviting.
I wondered how long grief can lay dormant.