Abstract:

So, you're not crazy, you just want to start your own company. Which kind of takes a level of crazy to pull it off. We'll talk through what it takes to be an entrepreneur, different kinds of companies (service, product, non-profit), the market, back-office administration, pricing and economics, and my experiences starting three companies.

Bio:

Bryson is the Founder of SCYTHE, a start-up building a next generation attack emulation platform, and GRIMM, a cybersecurity consultancy, and Co-Founder of the ICS Village, a non-profit advancing awareness of industrial control system security. He is a Senior Fellow for Cybersecurity and National Security at R Street and the National Security Institute and an Advisor to the Army Cyber Institute. As a U.S. Army Officer, he served as a Battle Captain and Brigade Engineering Officer in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom before leaving the Army as a Captain. He was recognized as one of the Top 50 in Cyber in 2020 by Business Insider.
