

Twenty Years of Man Made Decking

Kim Katwijk

President

Deck Builders Inc.

Olympia, Washington

After nearly two decades of designing and building deck structures, Mr. Katwijk has experimented with an extensive list of product options and installation techniques. Deck structures expand habitable space and provide an intimate interface with the outdoors. This presentation will explore the use of man-made decking products. Specifically, this presentation will discuss those things that have worked, those things that have not, and what might be offered in the future.
